As Plaza Companies' Senior Property Management Strategist, Peggy Maxwell oversees the company's efforts with regard to third-party real estate and property management operations while serving as a hands-on senior property manager for new portfolios.

Offering more than 25 years of industry and property management expertise, Peggy brings a wealth of information and resources to the Plaza table. She arrived at Plaza Companies following an 11-year stint as founder, president and designated broker for a successful commercial property management and brokerage company. She ultimately sold the business after transforming it from a small, relatively unknown startup into a thriving industry powerhouse overseeing approximately one million square feet of industrial, office, retail, multifamily and mixed-use space.

Peggy also honed her considerable skillset through a variety of portfolio manager, property manager and controller roles she'd held throughout the years, placing a special emphasis on budgeting, financial forecasting and creating and implementing carefully orchestrated business development plans. She also has substantial experience managing and supervising staff members and handling associated personnel matters and is well-versed in asset acquisition and disposition, tenant relations, tenant improvement projects and lease administration and negotiations, among related areas.

From helping Plaza Companies continue to raise its profile within the commercial property management sector to streamlining communications and serving as a key resource for company partners, Peggy plays an instrumental role in the business's success. A member of the Building Owners and Managers Association, AZCREW Phoenix, CASA of Arizona and the YWCA, among other affiliations, Peggy holds an Arizona real estate broker's license and is a proud graduate of Arizona State University.
